Multiple Programs, One Solution

We have good news. Awardco has something to take the headache out of managing multiple reward networks for multiple programs. The Smart Award Network lets you designate which award networks you want to use when you reward points to your employees. Now you can create custom award networks and select which programs are eligible, allowing for custom reward catalogs for all kinds of programs—and an unprecedented flexibility in redemption options.

Think of it this way: if you have a wellness program, but only want points from that program to be redeemed on a specific reward network with fitness items, you can do that. If you have a service award program that can only reward certain items because of taxes, you can create a specific catalog for that, too. And the best part? The platform does it all for you by intelligently sorting through the points awarded to employees, and will only allow employees to redeem their points on eligible programs and reward networks. Be smart about the way you manage your awards—and let us do the heavy lifting.
